All India Institute of Medical Sciences
New Delhi

Introduction:

Oral health is an essential part of your overall health and well-being. Poor oral hygiene can lead to dental cavities and gum disease and has also been linked to heart disease, cancer, and diabetes.

Maintaining healthy teeth and gums is a lifelong commitment. The earlier oral hygiene habits are inculcated - such as brushing, flossing, and limiting your sugar intake - the easier it'll be to avoid costly dental procedures and long-term health issues.

Objectives:

1. To train the staff nurses using on Oral Health Promotion through online platform
2. To evaluate the effectiveness of this training among staff nurses

Intended audience:

Staff Nurses of Navodaya Vidyalaya Samiti
